School board to decide on tax increase

Approved budget calls for 4 percent revenue hike

From staff reports

A public hearing regarding the upcoming fiscal year's school board tax rate will be held tonight, Wednesday, Sept. 4 at 6:45 p.m., according to an e-mail from Superintendent Sheila Mitchell.

A special-called board meeting is set to be held at 7:15 p.m. following the meeting in order to vote on the tax rate.

The district's current draft budget for 2013-14 has been calculated based on a 4 percent revenue increase, according to Anderson News reports.

The school board is set to approve its final budget in September.

A public hearing is required if the board chooses a 4 percent revenue increase rate.

An additional tax rate calculation known as "other" or subsection rate, at $5.84 per $1,000, would also be sub-

The school board is scheduled to hold a public hearing regarding its tax rate tonight, Sept. 4 at 6:45 p.m. Superintendent Sheila Mitchell said in an e-mail Tuesday morning that a special-called meeting to vote on the rate is set for 7:15 p.m. immediately after the hearing.

The Anderson County Board of Education is located at 1160 Bypass North in Lawrenceburg.

Football home opener is Friday

From staff reports

Friday Night Lights hit Lawrenceburg again, starting this week.

Anderson County opens the home portion of the high school football season that night when it hosts a very good South Oldham team.

Kickoff is set for Friday, Sept. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

For a full preview, see B4.

The Bearcats are considered one of the favorites to make it all the way to the state Class 5A championship game, to be held in Bowling Green in early December. Anderson began its journey with an impressive 50-21 win at George Rogers Clark last Friday. It was a contest in which the Bearcats struggled a bit early, but eventually took control and won easily.

An easy win is not expected Friday against a South Oldham team that is coming off the school's first-ever district championship and was ranked 10th in Class 5A in The Courier-Journal pre-season poll of the state's coaches. Anderson, which has never lost to South Oldham, was ranked eighth in the same poll.

While the schools have been longtime rivals in other sports, most notably basketball, they have only

City council raises taxes over 3 percent

Evans, Giles question why increase not more

City councilmen will add $6 for every $100,000 of assessed real property to city tax bills after approving a first reading of a compensating tax rate for the upcoming fiscal year.

The council voted unanimously to set tax rates at $1.90 per $100,000 assessed real property, a 3.26 percent increase

All six members of the council also approved to set personal property taxes at $3.07 per $100,000 of assessed property values, a 1.087 percent increase.

The new rates will produce roughly $1.1 million in revenue for the city, a $32,185 increase from 2012.

Real property assessments for the city went down by about $1.3 million since last year, according to councilman and finance committee chairman Sandy Goodlett, who cited numbers provided by the Property Valuation Administration, while personal property assessments in Lawrenceburg went up slightly by about $475,000.

"We're already starting out with less than what we had before," Goodlett said.

The decrease in real property assessments, according to Mayor Edwinna Baker during the special-called meeting held last Thursday, resulted in an initial compensating rate formula that

The state's decision about 20 years ago to limit hunters to harvesting one buck is a major reason Kentucky is now considered the top trophy buck destination in the United States, according to 'Outdoor Life' magazine.

Deer season opens Saturday for archers

Kentucky considered nation's top trophy producing state

For hunters, it's a day to rejoice.

For the deer they're trying to shoot? Not so much.

Saturday marks the opening of the archery deer season in Kentucky, a day when thousands of eager hunters wielding bows and wearing camouflage will climb tree stands or hunker down in ground blinds hoping to harvest a "shooter" buck — or at least fill their freezers with quality red meat.

Either way, it's one of the most anticipated days each year for sportsmen itching to hit the woods.

"I get real excited about it," said Jeff Lilly, an avid outdoorsman and columnist for The Anderson News. "I really enjoy getting back out in the woods after a long summer."

Lilly is far from alone in his enthusiasm, particularly since this area has been transformed from a sparsely populated location for deer to one of the best not only in Kentucky, but the United States.

Last year, "Outdoor Life" magazine named Kentucky as the nation's top destination for trophy deer hunting, based on a variety

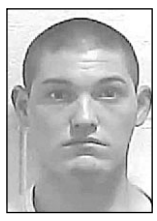
ANDERSON COUNTY GRAND JURY

Three indicted on meth charges

From staff reports

Three Mercer County residents were indicted Aug. 20 by an Anderson County Grand Jury on methamphetamine charges.



Hurst

Johnathan A. Tate, 20, of 375 Main St., Salvisa and Justin D. Randsdell, 20, of 645 Stratton Road, Salvisa, were each indicted on Class D felony counts of unlawful distribution of meth and a Class A misdemeanor for endangering the welfare of a minor.

Nathan H. Hurst of 4039 Bohon Road, Harrodsburg was indicted on a Class D felony for unlawful distribution of meth.

The charges again Hurst stem from an incident April 23 when Lawrenceburg Police say he "knowingly and unlawfully distributed a drug product or combination of drug products" containing substances known to be methamphetamine precursors, according to documents on file in Anderson Circuit Court.

Ransdell

The charges again Tate and Randsdell stem from an April 27 incident when they "knowingly and unlawfully distributed a drug product or combination of drug products" containing substances known to be methamphetamine precursors, according to documents on file in Anderson Circuit Court.

Also indicted was Kirby L. Sutherland, 34, of 1300 Alton Station Road, Lawrenceburg on a Class C felony charge of second-degree burglary.

The charge stems from a Feb. 14 incident during which Sutherland allegedly entered a dwelling at 1765 Old Frankfort Road with the intent to commit a crime, according to court documents.

The grand jury also returned an indictment against Heath E. McGuire, 36, of 139 East Showwalter, Georgetown for theft by unlawful taking, according to court documents.

The charge stems from a Nov. 29, 2012 incident when McGuire allegedly took control of property valued at $10,000 or more that belonged to Mary Ann Thompson, according to court documents.

Ex-bus driver pleads not guilty to assault charge

From staff reports

The former school bus driver charged with assaulting the district's transportation director at a drive-thru restaurant window in July pleaded not guilty last Thursday in Anderson District Court.

Timothy C. Brothers, 54, of 111 Ballard St., Lawrenceburg spotted Jeff Young, transportation department director for Anderson County schools, waiting at the McDonald's drive-thru in the West Park Shopping Plaza around 7 a.m., city police said.

Brothers then walked up to Young's pick-up truck and punched Young — still sitting in his driver's seat — several times in the face, according to the arrest warrant.

Young required medical attention for his injuries, including stitches on the inside and outer part of his upper left lip and the inside of his lower lip, according to the arrest warrant narrative.

Police charged Brothers with one count fourth degree assault-minor injury, but because the charge is a misdemeanor, did not detain him at the city police department at that time, police said.

While police were tracking down witness statements and attempting to review McDonald's security footage that afternoon, Police Chief Chris Atkins said, officers received a call at about 5 p.m. that Brothers had been seen at the school district's bus garage.

Brothers

Driving a yellow 1977 Chevy van, Brothers refused to pull over for police even after Officer Joe Saunier, who said he noticed Brothers driving his vehicle near The Animal Clinic on North Main Street, turned on his emergency lights and siren.

Brothers eventually stopped his vehicle on Center Street, according to an arrest citation, but started backing up and almost struck Officer Saunier and a patrol unit.

Brothers refused to get out of his van and became combative with Saunier and Officer Michael Corley, the citation said.

According to the arrest narrative, city police had warned Brothers three times that if he continued to resist arrest, Brothers would be Tased by police.

"He looked straight at me and said, 'I don't care,'" the arrest report said.

Saunier said he then Tased Brothers from the passenger side of Brother's van. Brothers then fell out of the van and the driver's door closed down on the Taser's prongs, disconnecting them from Brothers' body, Saunier said.

As Brothers continued to resist police, his wife and another man, who claimed to be ex-law enforcement, arrived on scene.

The woman and man "started in on" the arresting officer about legal matters, according to the citation, claiming Brothers had filed a personal lawsuit against the school board.

Officers told both of them to leave the scene, and they complied.

Police arrested and charged Brothers with a fourth degree assault-minor injury misdemeanor for the first incident with Young and additional charges of second degree fleeing or evading police-motor vehicle, first degree wanton endangerment-police officer, resisting arrest and menacing in the second incident with police.

Brothers was taken to Shelby County Detention Center and was released after posting a cash bond of $5,000.

According to an e-mail from Superintendent Sheila Mitchell, Brothers began his employment for the Anderson County school district in the transportation department in January 1992, and had been working full-time by October 1993.

His last day worked for the school district was May 2011, Mitchell said.

Mitchell confirmed that a lawsuit was filed to contest Brother's non-renewal, and an impartial hearing officer upheld the contract non-renewal.

According to a lawsuit filed in Anderson Circuit Court, a hearing regarding Brothers' non-renewal was held in March 2013, with the hearing officer upholding the district's decision not to renew Brothers' contract based on neglect of duty and insubordination.

An appeal and petition for judicial review was filed in April 2013 by Tim Brothers against the Board of Education and asks that Brothers be reinstated to his position with all back pay and benefits to which he may be entitled, according to court documents.

The Board of Education answered the appeal May 23.

ject to a public hearing since it is higher than the compensating rate. It would also be subject to a recall by petition as that rate is higher than the 4 percent revenue increase rate.

The school board recently discussed during a special-called work session earlier this month the merits of keeping its tax rate flat for the fifth year in a row or to raise its rate by choosing a 4 percent revenue increase tax rate.

The school board has chosen to take a flat tax rate for the last four years, and that rate, at $5.52 per $1,000 assessed value, totals $8,080,416 in anticipated revenue for the upcoming fiscal year.

A compensating rate, at $5.54 per $1,000 assessed value, would increase real and personal property taxes by $2 on homes assessed at $100,000, and provide an additional $30,000 in revenue for the district.

The 4 percent revenue increase rate — the tax rate set to increase overall district revenue by 4 percent — was calculated at $5.76 per $1,000 assessed value.

That means a home assessed at $100,000 would see its property taxes go from $552 to $576, an increase of just over 4 percent.

According to rate calculations provided by Finance Officer Nick Clark, total revenue gained from a 4 percent revenue increase would be $8,431,739 for real and personal property, roughly a $350,000 increase (excluding new property) in revenue compared to the flat rate.

met on the gridiron eight times. The last time they met, Anderson held on to win, 33-26, in the first round of the 2011 state playoffs.

Anderson County boasts good high school football players at every position. While there are no superstars, the Bearcats also have no glaring weaknesses and appear to be worthy of their ranking as long as there are no major injuries.

Bearcat football has long been a Friday night happening in Anderson County. Fans flock to Hollie Warford Stadium to tailgate, then root on the Bearcats and enjoy the pageantry of the night, including the award-winning Anderson County band. Standing room only crowds are the norm, not the exception.

Tickets are $5 each and are available at the main gate near the football field house and at an auxiliary gate behind the freshman center, also known as the old Emma B. Ward school.

Parking is available in the school's main parking lot on the west side of the school, nearest the 127 Bypass. Additional parking is available in front of the school and on the east side of the freshman center.

produced a negative revenue balance.

A compensating rate is calculated to produce approximately the same amount of tax revenue for that taxing district as the previous year's rate did, and by law, the compensating rate formula cannot contribute less revenue than the year before.

Therefore, City Clerk Robbie Hume said, the city had to consider a "substitute" compensating rate of $1.90 for real property and $3.07 for personal property.

Goodlett said the recommendation of the finance committee, which met to discuss the 2013 tax rates about an half hour earlier, was to adopt the compensating rates for real and personal property.

The city council's budget, which anticipates about $3.559 million in revenue for the general fund, was calculated based on a compensating rate, Goodlett said.

Councilman Ken Evans and Larry Giles spoke up about their concerns regarding a loss in future revenue if the council went with the compensating rate instead of a higher rate, either a 4 percent revenue increase or another calculated rate.

Evans asked Goodlett if he had given any thought to the 4 percent revenue increase tax rate, which would have given the city about $72,000 more than last year's rate.

"It's going to take a lot of years to make it up," Evans said, referring to the revenue the city could have received if it adopted a higher rate.

"Yeah, and there's unintentional things. There's no fallback whatsoever," Giles said. "The economy is bad."

Goodlett said the council could consider the 4 percent revenue increase tax rate, at $1.97 per $100,000 assessed real property and $3.183 per $100,000 assessed value for personal property.

The 4 percent revenue increase rate is only $2 more per $100,000 assessed property than the compensating rate, Goodlett said.

"It's just $2 on a $100,000," he said.

After voting to approve the compensating rate for the 2013 tax year, Evans and Giles recommended that the council hold a public hearing before the council sets its tax rates for 2014.

After some discussion by the council about the best date to hold a hearing, City Clerk Robbie Hume said he could schedule a planning session after the first of the year to forecast the next five years for the city.

No action was taken on the discussion to hold a future public hearing or planning session.

The 2013-2014 tax rates will be back on the city council agenda for a second reading at the council's Sept. 9 meeting.

City approves ordinance for electric franchise

The city of Lawrenceburg will continue to receive 3 percent of gross receipts from all electric companies in a new franchise agreement approved by the council in a special-called meeting last Thursday afternoon.

The council unanimously approved an ordinance to accept bids from all electric companies that sell electric energy in the city.

The new franchise agreement, which was hammered out with the input of Kentucky Utilities and its legal team, will be a 10-year contract with a 45-day period for electric companies to terminate services with the city.

The city would receive an annual 3 percent of gross receipts from each electric company's sale of electricity to customers.

Although the ordinance opens bidding to all companies who sell electricity, the two likely bidders will be KU and Bluegrass Energy.

Bluegrass Energy has agreed to sign off on the franchise agreement decided upon by KU and the city, Mayor Edwinna Baker said.

Customers should not be directly affected by the new franchise ordinance agreement, City Attorney Robert Myles said.

City to replace North Main curbs

The council approved a resolution to accept reimbursement money from the Department of Transportation to replace curbs on Main Street.

Public Works Director Larry Hazlett said the Department of Transportation will reimburse the city $10 per foot up to 1,000 feet for curb replacement.

He said the city plans to use about $10,000 of state department reimbursement funds to address the worse curb spots on North Main Street.

DEER

of factors that include trophy deer production, hunter density, available food sources and hunter friendly regulations, according to the state's office of Fish and Wildlife.

"The trophy deer hunting possibilities in Kentucky aren't a secret anymore," said Jon Gassett, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Last year, we sold deer permits to residents from every state in the country. The word is out that hunting in Kentucky is just that good."

Anderson County is one of the major reasons why, and has become one of the state's biggest producers of harvested whitetail deer.

In 2012, Anderson ranked 14th among the state's 120 counties. Hunters here reported 2,008 harvested deer and were narrowly edged out by Henry County, which reported 2010.

Topping the list was Owen County, which posted a whopping 3,751 deer. Shelby County also ranked in the top 10, posting 2,471.

Statewide, wildlife officials estimated the whitetail population to be about 750,000 before fawning, and that 131,395 were harvested in 2012, a 9.8 percent increase from the previous year.

Last year's harvest included 42 reported entries — 31 typical and 11 non-typical — into the Boone & Crockett Club record book. These record deer came from 35 of Kentucky's 120 counties.

Even with temperatures still warm during September, hunters can expect success. For the past three seasons, record harvests posted for the month have 5,577 deer in 2012, 4,945 in 2011, and 4,407 in 2010.

"Even though weather conditions aren't always ideal in September, there are some advantages to early season hunting," said Tina Brunjes, deer program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Most deer, even mature bucks, are still in their summer pattern when bow season opens. They are more visible during daylight hours than later in the season and their daily movements are more predictable.

Deer frequent crop fields and weedy pastures in the late afternoons, especially when the rising moon is high in the sky at dusk. In September, these quarter moon periods fall on the 12th and 26th of the month.

Anderson's total harvest is quite an accomplishment considering that just a couple of decades ago deer here were fairly scarce.

"I remember when growing up in Anderson County, about the only place you would possibly see deer was around the Avenstoke area," Lilly said, referring to the county's northwest corner near what is now the landfill.

Lilly said deer were also around the Birdie area of western Anderson County, "but you had to look real hard for pockets that had deer."

Lilly credits Fish and Wildlife's efforts in stocking deer in the area, along with changes in regulations that allow hunters to harvest only one buck each year.

"When they went to a one buck I remember a lot of us thinking that was crazy," Lilly said. "You could only get one buck then you'd be tagged out and done.

"Now, a lot of hunters won't just pop the first buck they see, and that has helped."

That regulation is credited as one of the major factors in building not only Kentucky's deer herd, but also the quality of bucks available.

Before the limit, 80 percent of the bucks taken in Kentucky were just 1 1/2 years old — too young to grow into trophy class. However, since the state phased in its one-buck limit from 1989-1991, the number of young bucks being taken by hunters in Kentucky dropped to nearly 40 percent, according to Fish and Wildlife statistics.

With age comes larger antler size.

"If you look at the numbers, you'll see that hunters have taken trophy bucks in 116 of Kentucky's 120 counties," Gassett said. "If you do your homework and hunt hard, you just might take a trophy buck anywhere in the state."

Lilly, along with Wildlife officials, anticipate the coming season to be a strong one.

"Hunters who are monitoring trail cameras or spending time observing deer in the afternoons realize it has been a good year for deer reproduction and survival," said Brunjes.

Brunjes said heavy rains in the spring and early summer created lots of food and escape cover for deer.

The outlook for deer season is excellent, but ultimately the weather during modern gun season in November has the biggest impact on overall harvest.

"From the deer I've been seeing on my trail cameras, I've got some pretty nice pictures of bucks and the does seem fat and healthy," Lilly said. "I've seen some twins and triplets running around. That shows they're good, healthy and sustainable."

ACLU Bible threat just the beginning

The American Civil Liberties Union is just getting warmed up, and elected officials running public meetings in Anderson County better dang well listen up and start preparing for the inevitable.

By warning the school district about Bible distribution by the Gideons, the ACLU has proved its tentacles have no limits, even into a state where most of what that bunch presses for is flatly ignored — outside of Lexington and Louisville, that is.

It's a safe bet that when Superintendent Sheila Mitchell consults with the district's attorney and school board, the Gideons will be told they can no longer offer Bibles to students, and not because the school board has suddenly lost its religion.

Instead, that decision will be couched in fear of being sued should another group — faith-based or otherwise — request to distribute information, too.

Imagine, if you will, the school board giving the green light to the Gideons, only to be approached a week or two later by a group of wiccans bent on sharing whatever it is they believe by handing out pamphlets or teaching kids to spell abracadabra.

Were the school board to reject that request after approving the Gideons, the district would be sued faster than Miley Cyrus went from wholesome TV teen to skanky TV nightmare.

The school board knows that such a lawsuit would cost a fortune to defend and, frankly, that it's nearly impossible to defend allowing one group access while denying another.

In other words, it will lose.

But the problems certainly won't cease when the school board eventually pulls the plug on the Gideons.

Next, the ACLU or another like-minded group is going to take umbrage with the simple fact that before the city council, fiscal court or school board opens its meetings, all regularly invoke the name of Jesus in prayer.

That will be considered establishment of religion and whichever group protests will do so loudly and threaten God knows how many lawsuits until that practice is stopped.

And they'll win, regardless of how many elected officials — with an ample amount of support from preachers, pastors and their faithful followers — spout righteous indignation.

In the end, the decision will come down to a simple formula: how much money is the city council or fiscal court willing to dish out to defend a lawsuit, let alone pay damages once they lose. It won't be about faith or God or anything else, it will be a financial decision and those in elected office simply cannot afford to bankrupt a community to defend that community's values, no matter how tightly those values are held.

"But wait a minute," some will say. "This is Anderson County, Kentucky, and people here overwhelmingly approve of offering Bibles to school children and join right in when public officials pray out loud to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

That's true, but like so many other issues in America today, right and wrong are rarely decided by the majority, regardless how small the minority.

You don't have to like being subjected to tyranny of the minority, but it happens every day.

Will this day come next week or next year? Who knows? But rest assured the day is coming when invocations to any deity in any public setting outside of church will come to a halt, and that includes before high school sports contests, graduation or anything else.

For that, don't blame those forced by threatened lawsuits for abandoning centuries-old traditions and beliefs. Instead, blame those who preach diversity of thought and opinion — provided those thoughts and opinions jive with their own.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Goal of ACLU is to purge faith out of Kentucky life for good

To the editor:

After World War II John Dewey established himself as one of the foremost American philosophers and educators; it would be difficult to exaggerate his influence. Given that his theories left a lasting mark on every teachers' certification program in the country, it's worth noting that Dewey's aim was to get young students to "surrender familiar and traditionally prized values," so that their parents' old-fashioned moral code might be replaced by ethics derived from "the findings of the natural sciences." In other words, Dewey's new America would be guided not by religious principles and traditional wisdom but by the doctrines of psychiatrists, sociologists and other supposedly enlightened experts.

He furthermore described "the otherworldliness found in religions whose chief concern is with the salvation of the personal soul" as "objectionable," because such religions are fit only for "minds that despair of the effort involved in the creation of a better world." Dewey only respected churches that are centered upon progressive activism and improving this world, here-and-now; he had no patience for those centered upon what he deemed fairy tales about the immortal soul, eternal truth and personal salvation.

As the architect of a revolutionary scheme Dewey saw the problem of education as "nothing less than the problem of the directed reconstruction of economic, political and religious institutions," i.e., how he and the elites who were to follow him could remake American society according to their convictions.

In attacking Anderson County public schools the ACLU is enforcing Dewey's program of "directed reconstruction," and warning local teachers and administrators that they need to stop publicly acknowledging their own community's values. ACLU lawyers are apostles of liberalism, which has long since become America's civic religion - and a uniquely dishonest religion it is, insofar as it pretends to be neutral about the big questions.

For government to try to evade the question of whether God exists is just another way of saying God doesn't matter, just as evading the question of whether fetuses are human beings means that in practice we're fine with an abortionist doing whatever he likes to them.

Consider this: Even as the ACLU tries to tell the people of Anderson how to run what are supposed to be their schools, here across the county line we are being told how to conduct our own business by "our" government. Right up the road from y'all, the Frankfort Fairness Ordinance - move over, George Orwell - will make any employer or landlord suspected of homophobic business decisions answerable to a special committee of diversicrats.

Right now lawsuits await every Frankfort shop-owner who wouldn't feel comfortable working with a transexual, every landlord who wouldn't want to rent to a lesbian couple as they try to adopt children.

The Tolerance Police won't rest until we intolerant people are not only driven into hiding but swept from the face of the Earth. In the long term we can anticipate action against churches which refuse to hire gay youth pastors, and pigs in drag will fly before any ACLU freedom-fighter leaps to our defense. See, when a Christian community offers its vision of the world to an atheist student, that's one step from the Salem witch trials, but when a puppet government crams its warped definition of tolerance down the throat of Christian businessmen ... well, of course that's different. As any liberal will tell you, his liberalism is neither a religion nor an ideology - it's just the true, right, and moral description of the way things are and should be. Heads he always wins, tails we always lose. What could be fairer than that, comrades?

Inclusiveness as liberals define it is a lie. It is a rhetorical sleight-of-hand whereby our communities and roots are deconstructed to make way for a multicultural Tower of Babel. There is no neutrality. Either God-fearing Kentuckians occupy the public square, or secular humanists will, and we must remember that secular humanists recognize no higher authority Who might put limits on how far they may go.

Make no mistake, Superintendent Mitchell: In the long run they will be satisfied neither with pushing the Bible out of the classroom, nor with trivializing it by setting it alongside the Koran, "The Communist Manifesto," and advertisements from Wal-mart. Their ultimate goal is to purge Kentucky life of the very faith upon which it was built.

'Atta boy,' support for last week's column response to Herndon

To the editor:

I enjoyed reading Alex Chesser's guest column in The Anderson News. I thought that what he wrote was thoughtful, well reasoned, and eloquent.

I also felt that he showed significant courage in saying what he did, especially given the values that are common here.

Given the sure to be controversial nature of what he wrote, I wanted to give him an "atta boy" and offer support (if he needs it) because of any negative feedback or personal attacks that may come his way because of it.

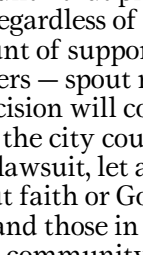
Going west for one last summer road trip adventure



Meaghan Downs
News Editor

Stephanie Blackwell's vision of California is desert and Hollywood.

She sees flat, open spaces.

Of course, Blackwell's never seen California, only heard about Great Aunt Bertie's orange grove and almond trees, the garden and maybe geese at Bertie's home in Selma, Calif.

But after a late summer road trip spanning more than 2,000 miles, an estimated $1,000 budget for gas and about 10 states, California will be her new home for Blackwell and her son, William Smith, age 9 almost 10.

Blackwell said she's moving from Lawrenceburg to help out her great aunt, who is in her mid-80s, in keeping up with the place.

Blackwell — along with her son, a cat, a pet rat and two friends — will take three to four days to travel more than 2,000 miles across the Midwest and southwestern United States. Blackwell said she plans on leaving Sept. 10 around lunchtime, when everyone is wide awake.

If Blackwell had her way, she said, they'd leave at night. She likes driving at night.

Blackwell's son William, who suddenly hopped on the phone during my interview with Stephanie last Wednesday afternoon, wanted to tell me he wished the road trip could be longer.

"I just want to keep it up to five weeks, because I like how it's so long and I get to sleep in the car," William, a fourth grader at Saffell Street Elementary, said.

I didn't want to break it to William that school will probably get in the way of his imagined, endless adventure on the open road of America's Interstates.

In my opinion, there is nothing more American, nothing that bookends summer's end more than the road trip.

Forget apple pie. Forget baseball.

Give me whipping wind from the Interstate, sun and the radio turned up so loud you can't hear yourself sing, and you've got yourself a great way to celebrate the end of summer.

Unfortunately, work gets in the way of my dream of a five-week road trip too, William.

Getting William enrolled in school after the trip is really the only thing Stephanie said she's worried about regarding the move.

"That's the only thing I'm worried about, William transferring," she said, adding she'll most likely enroll her son the Monday after the trip is completed.

Unlike many in her situation, she's not too concerned about the packing, because she's sold most of her furniture.

They won't need it where they're going — to Aunt Bertie's fully furnished home.

Took her a long time to get all that furniture she said; she especially miss the comfortable blue couch her cousin let her have only a few months ago. It'll go back to her cousin for now.

Stephanie will stuff her life — possessions winnowed

Understanding violence and children

Joan Martin
Columnist

In Duncan, Okla. three teens have been charged in connection with the murder of a 22-year-old man from Australia. The 15- and 16-year-old boys will be tried as adults and face life in prison without parole if convicted on the murder charge. The 17-year-old boy was charged with using a vehicle in the discharge of a weapon and with accessory to first-degree murder after the fact. If convicted the 17 year old may receive a sentence of two years to life in prison.

The 17 year old told officers that they were bored and killed Lane for "the fun of it." Lane was randomly targeted.

This column is not about gun control or Second Amendment rights. It's about raising safe kids. Understanding child development can help prevent violence. If adults know a child's characteristics and needs at different ages, they will better understand the reasons for a child's behavior.

You can help protect your child from violent acting out by the way you interact with your child. A parent who understands their child's development will be less likely to resort to physical or emotional abuse that might occur when they become angry or frustrated with a child's challenging behavior.

When children are young, they misbehave frequently because they are still learning. They don't behave as adults. They are exploring their environment and testing their limits. Children who have their basic needs met are less likely to misbehave in the future. All children have the basic need to feel safe, loved, protected and accepted. They need to have strong, stable relationships with parents or caregivers. They need to have a sense of trust in

As fall looms, learn to store root crops

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

Happy September. We now have 18 days until summer turns to fall.

The orange and green farmer's almanac already predicted a wet and chilly winter. The original Old Farmer's Almanac with the pretty yellow cover won't make their winter prediction until October. Though both were off with their predictions for last year.

As of this writing, we've had 10 fogs in August. That means 10 big dumps of snow for us. Our next little nature sign to watch is how long the leaves stay on the trees. The longer they stay, the harsher the winter. Geesh. I'm thinking 10 big snows is harsh enough.

As the garden goes bare, we need to think about storing our remaining food for the winter. Canning, freezing and drying works for most stuff, but some of you may just want to store.

I got a call from my friend Kimmy the other day about storing her pumpkins. Well, don't wash them and keep them in a cool, dark place. The same goes for winter squash. A flat box with a little sand floor or shredded paper or straw is great for storing root crops like carrots, potatoes and winter squash.

Tomatoes and apples need to be wrapped individually in newspaper and placed in an open lid box.

Keep the box in a cool dark place, too.

Wrapping is very important because these two fart. Actually, they quietly release their own ripening gas and the paper keeps it from ripening so fast with the group. Don't sit the boxes together either.

Conservation easements provide tax benefits

To the editor:

As part of a tax bill negotiated in January of this year, Congress extended until Dec. 31 the enhanced tax benefit that helps all of us who are interested in protecting working family farms, clean water, and natural areas.

The law enhances the federal tax benefits for landowners who donate voluntary conservation agreements to organizations like Shelby Area Rural Conservation, Inc. These agreements also provide a win-win solution for protecting natural resources important to the community while keeping land in productive private ownership.

This incentive enables Shelby Area Rural Conservation to assist more landowners in protecting resources and rural livelihoods for our children's benefit and for our community's future. Since it was first enacted in 2006, 394 acres of agricultural land have been conserved by donation in Shelby County.

Before 2006, landowners were only able to deduct a small portion of the value of their donation.

Now, conservation donors can deduct up to 50 percent of their adjusted gross income in any year (up from 30 percent), and, if over 50 percent of their income is from farming, ranching or forestry, 100 percent of their income is deductible. Additionally, donors can carryforward the remaining value of their donation for up to 16 years (previously six).

If you are a landowner in Anderson County and want to learn more about enhanced tax benefits of donating a conservation easement, contact: Shelby Area Rural Conservation, P.O. Box 985, Shelbyville, KY 40066-0985, email address: sarc@shelbybb.net, or phone 502-647-2726. We look forward to hearing from you.

those who raise and care for them. They need to trust that their basic physical needs will be met.

Birth to 18 months

Infants don't misbehave to annoy their parents. They don't have any words to use to express their feelings and they don't understand the consequences of their actions. They shouldn't be punished physically, emotionally or verbally. Infants should be comforted when distressed. Comforting doesn't spoil children. It helps them develop trust that their parent or caregiver will meet their needs.

18 months to 3 years

Toddlers misbehave because they think they are the center of the world and want their needs met immediately. They are developing a strong sense of self as independent individuals. Be calm, ignore tantrums, and avoid violence or verbal abuse. Teach your child how you want them to behave and be an example yourself.

3- to 5-year-olds

Children of this age can learn how to resolve conflicts without violence and find positive solutions to problems. Help them problem solve. They can learn how to express their anger with words and how to understand other people's feelings when there is conflict.

6-to 8-year-olds

Children can learn social rules, understand right and wrong and become more independent of their parents. Parents need to continue to help children resolve conflicts without violence, express anger with words, and think about the consequences and fairness of their actions. Parents who balance setting clear limits with children and allowing children to have more control of their own lives will help them develop confidence and self-esteem. These children generally relate to others in a positive ways.

The above ideas are just the beginning of understanding child development as a violence prevention tool. yard this month. I've still got a few shrubs and roses to plant in front of the house. Yes, it might finally look like a gardener lives here. I'm going with gravel for mulch in these new permanent beds.

I've noticed that I don't have to weed hardly at all and unlike hardwood mulch, I don't have to add more any every other year.

I did put in new trees this spring and I will need to heavily mulch these with straw to protect the new roots. Regular watering is also a must this month, to help these new babes put down plenty of roots to survive the winter.

I still have to dig and divide my beautiful grape iris. I'm sharing with my neighbor. When they get too crowded they don't bloom as well. Plus, after you divide you'll leave room for more babies to develop, so the digging, dividing and sharing can go on and on. Like a gift that keeps on giving.

I also need to prune back my wild black raspberries. Given the fact that they grow all over the farm, it's going to be an all day job. Good thing I'm going to have Saturdays off soon. Remember, you only cut off the canes that produced berries this year. The new, bright green canes will hold next year's berries, so don't go crazy with the pruners.

The only fertilizing to be done during this time of year is around the strawberries and on the lawn, if you like. On the lawn, you want something with a high first number, because grass craves nitrogen this time of year. You can use ammonium nitrate or an organic mix of bone meal, blood meal and wood ash to lightly cover the soil around the berries. Either method should be followed with a good watering. This will give you plenty of blooms next year, which means plenty of strawberries for your cereal.

Now, I want to thank all who stopped by the stand this season to say hello, ask advice or pick up some goodies. I so love seeing everyone and will miss you over the winter. Remember, as the sign above my door says, "The shortest way to heaven is through the garden gate." Happy growing.

to mostly clothing and electronics — into two vehicles: a PT Cruiser and a Corolla.

She said she's downsized from a two-bedroom house to anything that will fit in a car.

Stephanie kept using the word "adventure" to describe her upcoming move to a place that she's never seen and where there isn't a job immediately waiting for her at the moment.

But there are job prospects, she said.

Moving isn't scary for Blackwell, who said this will be the sixth time she's moved.

"When I travel, I get a lot of anxiousness, I'm just anxious to get there," Stephanie, who said she's been staying at a friend's house up until the day of the move.

But it's a good kind of anxious, an excited kind of anxious.

Before Sept. 10, they'll have to map out their final route.

The road trip essentials will need to be in place: a portable DVD player for William, a first aid kit in case of emergencies, mix CDs and compilations of music covering pretty much everything except jazz.

Hardback copies of a childhood favorite, the Nancy Drew mystery series, will be available for Blackwell to read when she isn't driving.

And there will be photos.

Blackwell and Company plan to send photos along the way, possibly holding up a copy of The Anderson News at welcome signs. Maybe even at the World's Largest Ball of Twine, located in Cawker City, Kansas, the St. Louis Arch or while visiting friends in the ominous-sounding Death Valley.

We may see The Anderson News dangled over the cavernous reaches of the Grand Canyon.

And, at the end, we'll hopefully see smiling (and undoubtedly tired) faces among those orange trees.

Honoring veterans by escorting the Wall

From staff reports

Hundreds of motorcyclists roared through Lawrenceburg on Aug. 29, honking and waving to onlookers stationed along the U.S. 127 Bypass, on their way to Harrodsburg as part of the Traveling Wall Honor Escort.

The traveling escort started its ride in Frankfort, passing through Lawrenceburg around 6 p.m, and then ended the ride in the Anderson-Dean park in Harrodsburg.

Bud Garrison of Lawrenceburg, a Vietnam War veteran, rides with the Traveling Wall Honor Escort last Thursday. Hundreds of bikers accompanied the Vietnam War memorial from Frankfort to Harrodsburg.

A group of bikers display the American flag as they drive through Anderson County last Thursday as part of the Traveling Wall procession.

Motorcyclists ride down the 127 Bypass toward Harrodsburg during the Traveling Wall Honor Escort event last Thursday evening.

PEYTON

Cameron, now a junior at Anderson County High School, also participated in the National Archery in the Schools All-Star World Championship, where his team handily defeated teams from around the world and he was able to share his love of archery with African children who had never drawn a bowstring.

Their journey to Africa started at the end of May when the teenage brothers left Lawrenceburg and their parents — Brian and Holly — behind after being invited there by a professional hunting guide they met during the NASP World Tournament in Orlando last year.

While there, the brothers said they worked on what natives call a farm, skinning harvested animals, carrying around gear and building hunting blinds.

During that time, the brothers were allowed a chance to try their hand at hunting wild African game, and each were able to harvest a mountain zebra.

"It's supposedly one of the harder ones to kill because of where they live," Braden, an engineering student at the University of Kentucky, said. "It's rough, rocky terrain at a place where a volcano erupted millions of years ago. There was rock spewed everywhere."

The brothers used a guide, known in that area as a rifle bearer, to carry their rifles and lead them to game.

"Any hunt you go on you have to have a rifle bearer," Braden said. "They know the terrain and carry your guns."

Braden said the days were hot, forcing him and his brother to drink 3 liters of water during each day's hunt.

The rifle bearers drank none.

"They wouldn't eat or drink for the entire day," he said. "They see that as weak and say it slows them down."

Once they bagged their zebras, they had the daunting task of getting them back to where they were staying by carrying them out one section at a time.

"We were about a mile and a half away from the trail," Braden said. "We had to carry it out piece by piece, over a mountain. It took us 18 hours and we got dehydrated and lost.

"They're a lot heavier than a deer. They're basically donkeys with stripes."

The effort was worth it, however. The teens said the meat is terrific if cleaned properly and the zebras' hides are worth about $2,000 each.

"They are currently being dried at a taxidermist's in Africa," Braden said. "You can make a carpet out of a zebra hide, or hang it on the wall."

The brothers had hoped to hunt for other African game, but a mix-up while entering the country cut their trip short.

"We were supposed to have gone hunting for elephants and more exotic things, but Namibia [the area they visited] has a surplus of unskilled labor and they are touchy about it," Braden said. "I made the mistake of telling them I was helping a big game hunter, and they limited our stay to one month.

"It was cut short because I couldn't acquire an extended visa."

Cameron Peyton, center, poses for a photo with African school children he and other American archers taught to shooting during their trip to Africa.

Competing, teaching

Cameron Peyton knows a thing or two about competing on some of the world's biggest archery stages.

An archer since he and his brother received small bows for Christmas as small children, Cameron has helped his school teams win a host of titles, including a world title a couple of years ago in Orlando.

Cameron earned his way to South Africa after placing third out of 2.3 million shooters in the NASP national shoot earlier this year.

He was joined by 15 other American shooters on the trip to Africa in July, including several others from Kentucky.

The American all-stars were divided into four teams of four, and handily defeated teams from across the globe.

Cameron, who shot on the United States' first team, said that tournament wasn't without its struggles, though, as he and other team members became sick just before it began.

"Several of the team members had a virus," said Cameron, who was accompanied on the trip by his parents and Anderson County resident Roy Grimes, president of NASP.

"I woke up in the middle of the night with a stomach ache and threw up 10 times. The day of the shoot, we got up and half the team had the virus."

Peyton's problems didn't end once the shooting began.

After posting scores of 295 in the first two rounds, the arrow rest on his bow broke.

"When you shoot in a tournament you can't adjust your sites," said Cameron, adding that unlike most hunting bows, shooters cannot use pin sites on their bows and must rely on what is referred to as "Kentucky windage," which dates back to the days of cap and ball firearms.

"You use the tip of the arrow to aim with and hold it on your target," he said. "You have to memorize where you hold for certain distances."

Despite his broken arrow rest, Cameron was able to shoot another 295 (out of 300) in his third round and help lead the United States to victory.

The competition, he said, was fun, but he also enjoyed the opportunity to share his love of archery with native children who had never shot a bow.

"It was cool spreading what I know ... what my father taught me," Cameron said. "Not everyone has a father who can teach them archery at a young age.

"We were almost like heroes when we went to their schools. It was surprising how good they were."

The trip was topped off when the Peytons and other Americans were treated to a five-hour bus trip to Mokopane, South Africa and the nearby Shikwaru Lodge. There they enjoyed tours by open-air safari trucks where they encountered wild giraffe, rhinoceros, wildebeest, hippos, a possum-playing jackal, according to Grimes.

Before returning home, Grimes said families were treated to another wildlife safari, which culminated with them being able to "walk with the lions."

Grimes said they were able to get "close and personal" to the lions and soon discovered that about three licks from a lion's abrasive tongue can draw blood.

"Those who discovered this wore the mild abrasion as a badge of honor," Grimes said.

The Peytons recounted their own lion experience, including getting "nipped."

"I got nipped by one and my father got bit," Cameron said with a laugh, adding that neither was injured.

"[The lion] bit me and came off, but my father got bit and [the lion] held onto his hand and wouldn't let go."

"They were beautiful, though," said Cameron's mom, Holly. "The little cubs looked like stuffed animals."

The entire experience is one Cameron said he will never forget, including a chance to bond with shooters that until now, he had only competed against.

"God has blessed me with what I have," Cameron said, adding that he hopes to one day shoot at the Olympic level. "I had heard about these other kids forever, and had always wanted to meet them and get to know them.

"Now, instead of wanting to beat them, I see them as good friends. We usually shoot against each other to beat each other, now we're all united together."

OSCAR BROWN & SONS SELLS TO DANVILLE FIRM

THE WAY WE WERE

50 YEARS AGO
Thursday, June 13, 1963

W.B. Cheak reported the loss of two cows on his farm on Bond Lillard Road. Lightning in a storm Saturday morning killed them.

Miss Linda Burke, Deputy County Clerk in the office of William M. Routt, resigned to accept a position in the accounting department of Lawrenceburg National Bank.

Jean Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cunningham, filled her position in the county clerk's office.

A battery from a farm tractor and a number of small tools, valued at $40, all belonging to Edwin Hanks, were reported stolen. The items were taken from a barn belonging to his father, Clyde Hanks, located on Wildcat Road.

Thursday, June 27, 1963

Edwards' Bologna was 39 cents a pound, sold by the piece, at Model Market. Ice-cold watermelons were 69 cents each.

Col. Jesse Lindsey, State Civil Defense Director, had contacted Truman Birdwhistell concerning the stocking of the Tyrone Quarry with supplies as a fallout shelter.

Birdwhistell said between $180,000 to $190,000 in supplies would be stocked at the quarry, to be delivered from the Lexington Signal Depot by rail or truck.

Thursday, July 18, 1963

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peach received word that their son, Jimmie W. Peach, had been promoted to rank of SP/4. He was stationed in Germany and expected to return home in the next three months.

30 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Aug. 4, 1983

Oscar Brown & Sons, a wholesale business that had been located in Lawrenceburg for more than 100 years, was sold to Central Warehouse in Danville.

Central Warehouse planned to continue service in the area.

"It's sad," said Ray Brown, the youngest of the late Oscar Brown's two sons. "I wanted to cry when I went up there the other day. It's been a wholesale house for a long time."

The property was located behind the railroad, between Court and Woodford streets and had been a wholesale business for more than 100 years.

"J.H. Rucker operated a business there and sold to Powell -Hackney, who continued until the mid-40s, when they moved to Frankfort.

"About 1940, Dad bought the building and Powell-Hackney continued in the location even after the building burned and Dad rebuilt."

Prior to the war Ray and his brother, Thurman, operated a general merchandising business in New Castle, and when Ray went into the service, the business proved too much for Thurman, according to his widow, Naomi.

Thurman sold the store and he, two dogs and Naomi, moved to Lawrenceburg. Thurman's parents had already made the move from Salvisa to Lawrenceburg.

About that time Powell-Hackney decided to move their wholesale business to Frankfort. Ray returned from the service and the three men, father Oscar and sons Thurman and Ray, decided to start a business from the ground up.

"It was about 1945, and a bad year to start," said Ray. "Everything was rationed and it was hard to get merchandise. About all we could get was spinach and turnips greens, but we finally managed."

They started with three salesmen; four truck drivers, three in the office and three in the warehouse.

In the early years, the hours were long and included Saturdays and sometimes Sundays.

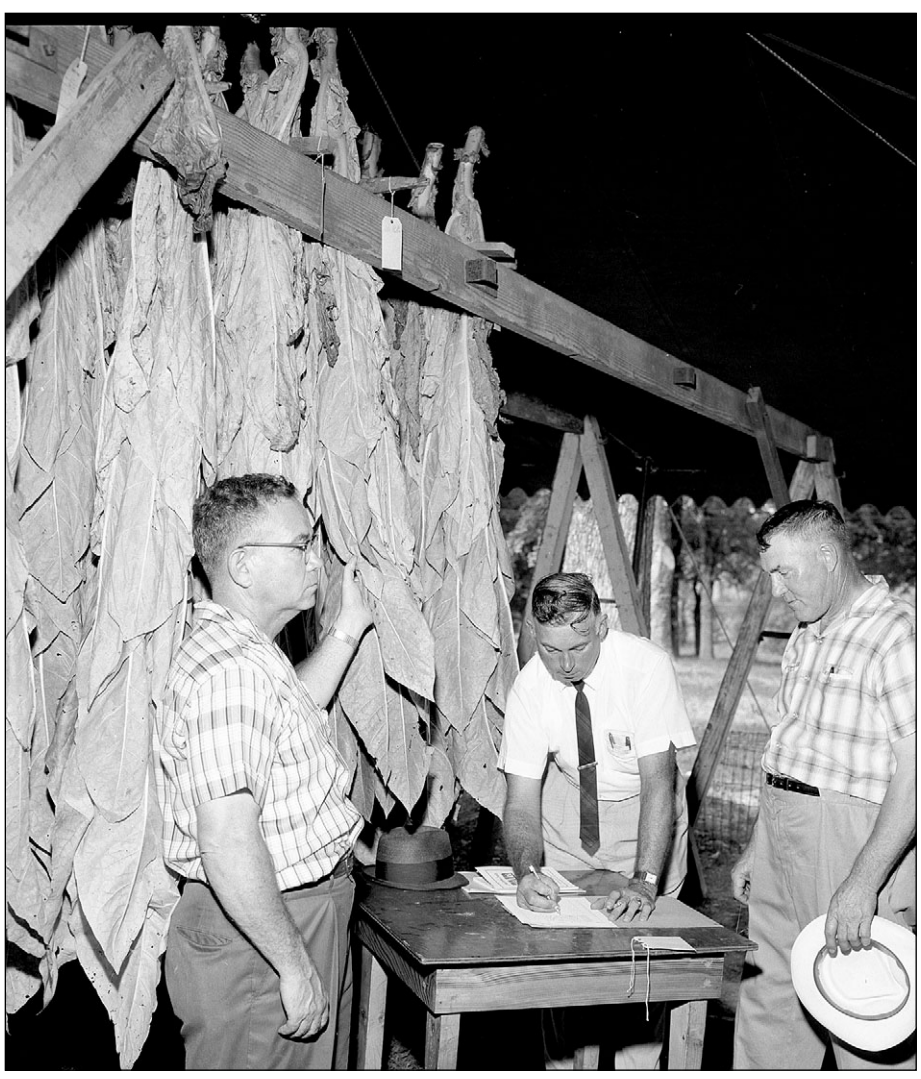
Mr. Oscar was active in the business for about 10 years. Then Thurman and Ray ran it until Thurman's death in September 1969, when it was left to Ray's management, even though Mr. Oscar lived until July 1977.

Stores in a 50-mile radius were serviced by the wholesale business and some roads were not too good. The roads improved and the hours grew shorter . . . but the need to retire prompted Ray to sell.

Tom Smith, one of the stockholders in Oscar Brown, said. "My relationship there with Mr. Thompson and Ray Brown, who has helped us a great deal, has been very good. It has gotten harder to compete and we thought it was a good time to liquidate. Central Wholesalers took over the business, inventory and most of our employees, so we think we came out really good there. Most of them have been ale to maintain a job and that's important."

GIANT VINE – SMALL TOMATOES – 1963

This large tomato vine was in a garden grown by Irvin Sims on South Main Street in 1963. It was chopped down when the plant had spread over a 16-foot area. It measured more than 9 feet tall. The volunteer red cherry variety was covered with clusters of cherry-like green fruit, which were sweet and delicious. Sims said the variety is excellent for green tomato pickles and to garnish salads.



CHOICE TOBACCO – 1963

Choice tobacco at the 1963 Agricultural Fair was examined by Charles Bertram, left, as he, Arlie Gritton and Raymond Hoskins prepare the leaf for display and enter the exhibitors' names on the record charts. County farmers were well-pleased with the quality of tobacco throughout the community in 1963.

15 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Aug. 19, 1998

Amanda Gibbons was Anderson County's 1999 Junior Miss. She took honors in creative and performing arts, presence and composure and physical fitness.

First runner-up was Amanda Champion, who also received awards in presence and composure and scholastic achievement.

Second runner-up was Kristin Keith.

Third runner-up was Sikita Morris, who also won talent and was voted by the participants as the winner of the Scarlet Miller Spirit of Jr. Miss award.

Sara Schaars won in presence and composure and Leah Young won in physical fitness.

Pray for Miley Cyrus and the state of the family

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

Last week, social media and entertainment websites lit up in the moments following Miley Cyrus' performance on MTV's Video Music Award show. Truth be told, the VMAs have never been a place where decorum and decency have been expected. Since my high school days of watching MTV envelope-pushing was taking place then; by today's standards what was jaw-dropping then may seem pretty tame today.

From lewd, dancing teddy bears to a costume that barely covered her body to sexual innuendo that was more sexual than it was innuendo, the former Hannah Montana star gave fuel to the proverbial fire in the entertainment industry. Facebook and Twitter have been buzzing with jokes, many making fun of the one-time child superstar and daughter of country music star Billy Ray Cyrus.

In an article with GQ magazine, Mr. Cyrus lamented the fame and fortune that came with the television show "Hannah Montana," blaming the show for destroying his family.

Interestingly enough, Mr. Cyrus goes on to talk of how his and his daughter's faith has been shaken since her rise to stardom and how he believes his family is under attack by Satan.

He says, "It's the way it is. There has always been a battle between good and evil. Always will be..."

Reading this article, you can almost feel the weight of the burden Mr. Cyrus is carrying as he looks over the last several years with the clearest of hindsight.

This is a man who with seeming sincerity actually rues the day his daughter made it famous and the subsequent fallout of her popularity. You can almost hear the ache of his voice as he says, "For my family to be here and ... everybody OK, safe and sound and happy and normal, would have been fantastic. Heck, yeah. I'd erase it all in a second if I could." And this was written prior to her performance on the VMAs. I can only imagine how his heart aches (no pun intended) after seeing her disastrous act last week.

Mr. Cyrus is no theologian, but when he says that his family was under supernatural attack I believe he was correct. It's not because he is famous that they were attacked; it's because he had a family. That old serpent, Satan, has been attacking families since he slithered on the scene in Genesis three. He is anti-family, just as society at large is today; thus the need to be diligent in leading our families.

Miley isn't the only young person to end up in a situation where she thinks she is in control of her life, surrounded by people who she thinks are her friends, convinced that the decisions she is making are beneficial, when in reality they are pushing her closer to the brink of disaster. As far out as she may be, however, she is not beyond the reach of grace.

We can sit in judgment on Miley's onstage antics; their public nature invites such scrutiny. But we cannot sit in judgment as if we were immune to such things ourselves. We may not have a worldwide stage, but given the opportunity, apart from God's grace, there go we.

Trevin Wax, editor at Lifeway Christian Resources in Nashville, and contributor to the Gospel Coalition blog, wrote a recent post entitled "I Weep for Miley" in which he said, "I weep for the fathers of Miley Cyrus, Katy Perry, Lady Gaga, Madonna, and all the family members of all the other women who feel they have to sexualize themselves to achieve success. I weep for my 5-year-old little girl, who twirls around like a princess and hugs me tight at night, when I think of the world she is growing up in, the world I will send her into. I weep for the broken, messed-up world we live in. But then I weep at the power of grace."

Pray for Miley, and millions of others like her. For where there is much sin, there is much grace. Thank God his arm is long and his grip is tight.

THE POWER OF POSITIVITY

In recent years more and more Christians seem to be reading books like "The Power of Positive Thinking." Sermons also seem to be headed this way. Recently I heard Joel Osteen say we need to get rid of the negative things in our lives and think only in a positive fashion. Just because we throw negative things out, doesn't mean the problems will go away. All of these books and sermons on the power of positivity has only accomplished one thing: making the author rich and the motivational preacher LIKED by man. These would be sensationalist preachers are destroying those searching for the truth of God. "For do I now persuade men, or God? For if I still please men, I would not be a bondservant of Christ" (Gal. 1:10).

The power that we ought to be concerned with is found in Romans 1:16-17 "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God to salvation for everyone who believes, for the Jews first and also for the Gentiles. For in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith to faith; as it is written, The just shall live by faith."

Throw away these motivational garbage filled books and get to studying the mind of God and you will find peace within, from God. "Be diligent to present yourself approved to God, a worker who does not need to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Timothy 2:15).

ENGAGEMENTS

Harvey-McClure

Leanne Marie Harvey and Chadwick McClure

Curtis and Colleen Harvey of Lawrenceburg announce the engagement of their daughter, Leanne Marie Harvey of Conyers, Ga., to Chadwick McClure of Dallas, Ga., son of Catherine-Philpot Jones and stepfather Mark Jones of Forest Park, Ga.

The bride's grandparents are the late Mr. Charles Harvey and Mrs. Arnita Harvey and Mrs. Jean Ann Penny.

The bride received a bachelor's degree at Murray State University and a master's degree at the University of Phoenix, Georgia campus grounds.

She is currently employed as an indirect buyer of Aramark Uniform Services, Inc.

The groom is a graduate of Redan High School in Georgia and attended DeVry University.

He is currently employed as a customer service representative of Cambridge-Lee Industries, LLC.

The groom has two loving handsome twin boys — Myles and Mylique McClure.

The wedding is scheduled to take place Sept. 23, 2013, at 4 p.m. at the Merle Manders Conference Center in Stockbridge, Ga.

Wilson-Dennis

Lynn Wilson and Nathaniel Dennis

Velda Arietta and Harold Beach of Corinth and Marshal Sheldon of Covington announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynn Wilson of Salvisa, to Nathaniel Dennis of Salvisa, son of Gloria and Johnny S. Dennis of Salvisa.

Grandparents of the bride are Helen Sheldon and the late Shelby Sheldon of Corinth.

Grandparents of the groom are Leslie and Barbara McGaughey, Alice McGaughey, James Earl Dennis, all of Lawrenceburg, and Ann Dennis of Frankfort.

The bride is a 2002 Harrison High School graduate. She is currently employed as a customer service technician for the Kentucky Transportation Department.

The groom is a 2003 Anderson County High School graduate and attended Eastern Kentucky University from 2003-2005. He is currently employed at Toyota.

The wedding is scheduled to take place Sept. 14, 2013, at 6:30 p.m. at the farm of the groom's parents in Salvisa, located at 690 Stratton Road.

Western and Western Anderson school homecoming set

From staff reports

The former Western/Western Anderson School will have a homecoming event on Saturday, Sept. 21, from 4 to 8 p.m. at the American Legion Park on Broadway in Lawrenceburg.

Potluck dinner will be served at 5:30. Everyone who was a student, graduate, teacher, principal, employee, or in any associated with the school is invited to attend the school's first ever homecoming celebration and encouraged to bring their favorite homemade dish and drinks.

They are also encouraged to bring photographs of classes from the past. The celebration will be at the shelter in the park.

For more information, please contact Donna Crain Drury, class of 1970, at 502-859-8080 or donnacdrury@bellsouth.net.

Kentucky poet laureate to speak at Anderson public library Saturday

From staff reports

Frank X Walker, the current Kentucky Poet Laureate, will be speaking about his work on Sept. 7 at 2 p.m., according to a news release.

"This is a great opportunity to learn and hear from one of Kentucky's great poets," event organizers said in a release.

"Please help get the world out and let's support our local authors."

For more information, contact Tami Elam at 502-839-6420.

Lawrenceburg residents organize poker run in honor of cop

More than $30,000 raised for Ellis family

From staff reports

A poker run organized by two Lawrenceburg residents and held in honor of slain Bardstown officer Jason Ellis raised roughly $35,000 for the Ellis family.

Two Lawrenceburg residents, Kevin and Stephanie Turner, helped to organize the "Officer Jason Ellis Benefit Poker Run" held Aug. 24 with the assistance of Matt Schrader at Joe Hill's in Bardstown and the Kentucky Victory Owners Group (KY VOG), according to Poker Run volunteer Julie Woods.

Kevin said he had been going to Joe Hill's to pick up motorcycle parts the morning of Officer Ellis' death. That morning stuck with him, Kevin said, and he and his wife Stephanie thought a poker run to raise funds for Ellis' family was a worthy cause.

Photo furnished

The first group to depart prays before the start of the Aug. 24 'Officer Jason Ellis Benefit Poker Run' organized by Lawrenceburg residents Kevin and Stephanie Turner.

Thousands of bikes showed up and raised more than $30,000 for the Ellis family, Woods said.

Kevin estimated that about 1,700 people attended the event, and he would have been "up a creek" without the help of the Elizabethtown Christian Motorcycle Association.

"I volunteered for the event, and let me tell you, it was huge," Woods said via e-mail. "And so touching. I can't express the emotion we all felt seeing all those motorcyclist pulling in to support this family."

The 85-mile ride started at Joe Hill's, stopped at the Country Mart in Taylorsville and made its final stop at Jim Beam distillery where participants enjoyed live music, door prizes and food.

"I think it turned out extremely well," Kevin said, adding that the poker run was his first foray into this type of event.

He said Joe Hill's has expressed interest in the poker run becoming an annual event to be held in honor of Ellis, but perhaps with the funds diverted to another cause in the future.

All proceeds of the poker run went to the Ellis Memorial Fund.

"Just want to thank everybody that came out and supported us, and the spectacular turnout," Kevin said.

Emotional opening to football season

Sometimes the first weekend of the football season is as exhilarating as an 80-yard bomb, as deceptive as a blowout win or as jolting as an Andrew Jackson hit in the backfield.

For local fans, it could have been a mixture of the three.

John Herndon
Sports Editor

Exhilarating

That had to be the feeling around Anderson County football after a 50-21 win at George Rogers Clark Friday night. The Bearcats were far from perfect, to be sure, but they did a lot of things right in beating a decent opponent Friday night.

What I liked the most was how Anderson responded early. The Bearcats squandered a big opportunity when they fumbled the ball away well into Clark territory on the opening drive. There were three other first-half turnovers, but never was there hint of panic on the Anderson sideline.

The Bearcats kept plugging away and got a huge lift from Ryan Martin's 36-yard punt return to set up their first score.

By the way, I am not sure the last time a Bearcat had a longer punt return than Martin, but it has been a while.

The Bearcats gradually took control and by the second quarter, there was little doubt who would win as the Anderson line established its superiority and George Rogers Clark had no answer for the Anderson attack. After the Bearcats wiped the butter from their fingers, a game that the Anderson coaching staff seemed genuinely wary about turned into a rout.

Anderson also had to be extremely happy with a defensive unit that, for the most part, showed why experience matters. The Bearcats were usually disciplined against a team that ran a hurry-up offense until its starting quarterback went down with a severe concussion. Anderson only gave up a couple of big plays against a team with similar weapons to the ones that have traditionally given Anderson fits.

Not everything clicked for Anderson and there are some things to work on, but it was a good start to the season.

Deceptive

For Anderson County, that part is obvious: The Bearcats whipped a team that was 1-10 a year ago.

It is true that Clark lost several close games and it is also true that the Cardinals are expected to be greatly improved. But it is also true that Anderson's first opponent will never be confused with Bowling Green, Harlan County or Conner.

Anderson was impressive, but it was not something to get carried away with. There are nine more regular-season games with most of the remaining opponents, including South Oldham, Friday's foe, considered to be better teams.

Jolting

Remember that hit Western Kentucky's Andrew Jackson put on Kentucky's Jonathan George? I felt it and I was sitting in my living room.

It might have been symbolic of the reality that hit UK fans about the shape of the football program. There had been so much hype about Mark Stoops and his staff, most of it deserved, since it focused on recruiting.

But through the hype, few were listening to Stoops' constant reminders that the Wildcats were woefully short on players. It showed against a Western team that is much better than given credit for and is coached by a sideline genius in Bobby Petrino.

Stoops is going about things the right way, but it is going to take time. Need we be reminded that the most successful coaches at UK in the last 30-some years, Jerry Claiborne and Rich Brooks, saw their tenures open with losses?

Football is the toughest sport to turn around simply because of the sheer numbers involved, but even if the Wildcats don't win more than 2 or 3 games this year, Stoops is on the right track.

Not perfect, but mighty good

Many star as Anderson romps past Clark

WINCHESTER – Perfection is never completely attainable, especially in the first test of a high school football season. But goodness, gracious, Anderson County was impressive Friday night.

The Bearcats thumped a vastly improved George Rogers Clark, 50-21, at Cardinal Stadium, an outcome that does not tell the story of just how dominant the Bearcats really were despite the predictable mistakes.

Home opener
The Bearcats will host is first home game of the season Friday night vs. South Oldham, B4.

Anderson turned the ball over four times in the first half, twice inside the Cardinal 25-yard line. There was a defensive lapse on Clark's first play from scrimmage that resulted in the Cardinals getting a 77-yard touchdown pass. Not much else went wrong.

Anderson looked like a team every bit worthy of its lofty ranking – the Bearcats were picked eighth in the state in both the Courier-Journal and Lexington Herald-Leader pre-season coaches polls – as it routed a team that had the same general makeup of those that had given the Bearcats fits in recent years.

"I couldn't be more proud of our

Lady Bearcats struggle, fall to Spencer County

Second half explosion dooms Anderson in district matchup

By John Herndon

Anderson County's girls knew things might be tough on the soccer field this year. Just how tough has been magnified in the early part of the season.

Spencer County erupted for three goals over a 15-minute span in the second half to defeat the host lady Bearcats, 4-3, in girls' soccer action last Wednesday night.

Saturday, the Lady Bearcats fell to Russell High, 1-0, to fall to 0-3-1 on the year.

Madison Ratchford, one of the state's leading scorers last year, ripped the Lady Bearcats with all three goals as Spencer County recorded its first-ever win over the Lady Bearcats. Ratchford's outburst gave Spencer a 4-1 lead with 11:39 to go, but Anderson made a game of it, scoring twice in just over five minutes.

Anderson County's Madeline Wilson goes on the attack against Spencer County's Cailey Meredith in the first half of Wednesday's game. Wilson scored two goals but that was not enough to overcome the Bears in a key district matchup.

"There were definitely some mistakes," Anderson coach Jason Earnest explained about Spencer's explosion. "You have to be aggressive and get the ball."

Ratchford had broken a 1-1 tie when she got a favorable bounce in front of the net, then directed the ball past Anderson goalie Billie Clark.

Ten minutes later, Ratchford put the Bears in control when she got by Clark who had come out of the net but was unable to grab the free ball. Ratchford drove the ball into the open net to make it 3-1.

Five minutes later, Ratchford scored from the right wing to make it 4-1.

Ironically, Clark had just gone through a stretch in which she had made several big saves or deflections to thwart Spencer threats.

"Billie is a freshman and she made some mistakes back there," Earnest said. "She is very athletic, but

Lady Bearcats put up big numbers to reach final

Darst, Crabtree named All-Tournament

From staff reports

The Anderson County High School volleyball team put together an impressive performance in advancing to the championship game of the First Spike Tournament, hosted by Iroquois High School in Louisville, on Saturday. The tournament was held at the Ohio Valley Volleyball Center.

The Lady Bearcats rolled past four Louisville-area teams before falling to Owensboro Apollo, 2-0, in the final. The Eagles scored a pair of 25-16 wins for the title.

In reaching the final, Anderson scored 77 kills, 33 aces, 59 digs and 17 blocks and played outstanding volleyball through the tournament, according to a news release.

Anderson defeated Seneca (25-23, 25-21), Louisville Central (25-11, 25-12), Portland Christian (25-17, 25-18) and Brown School (25-19, 25-20) to reach the final.

"Our momentum carried us throughout the tournament," Anderson coach Courtney DeLong said in the news release. "Our vision was clear and it aligned with our goal to be the best on the court."

Anderson improved to 6-2 on the season. While records are sketchy, it appears to be the best start for Lady Bearcat volleyball in over a decade.

Apollo improved to 10-3, with only one of the losses coming against a Kentucky team.

"The communication, chemistry and determination from our varsity players helped to set the tone for what proved to be a great day for Anderson County volleyball," assistant coach Bob Hardin said in the release.

Anderson County players Regan Darst and Katie Crabtree were named to the All-Tournament Team.

The Lady Bearcats are slated to host defending 30th District champion Shelby County next Tuesday, Sept. 10 at 6:30 p.m. Students from Emma B. Ward Elementary school wearing an Anderson spirit shirt will be admitted free.

Anderson also hosts Washington County on Thursday, Sept. 5, at 7:30 p.m. Turner Elementary students wearing Anderson spirit wear will be admitted free to that match.

Smiles return as Bearcat golfers knock off Western Hills

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

There were no raucous celebrations when Anderson County defeated Western Hills last Thursday.

It was golf and the sport's decorum would not have allowed such a demonstration. But that did not mean the Anderson boys could not be happy with the 148-150 win at Wild Turkey Trace.

"The grin has returned," Anderson coach Jim Beward said. "All five guys shot under 40 for the first time in my tenure as coach."

Beward is only in his second year as Anderson's head coach but the message was clear: After a sub-par week, the Bearcat golfers seemed to be back, at least for one day, with the win over Western Hills.

Lee Robinson led the Bearcats with a 35, while Nick Wilson followed with a 36.

"This was a very good golf match," Beward said. "Both teams played extremely well and we were fortunate to get a couple of putts to go down at crucial times."

Wilson turned in his finest round since the Bearcat Classic on Aug. 10.

Beward said Wilson "had his wedges working well throughout the round."

Beward said Robinson was "rock solid" and noted that Tyler Brothers, who has gone back and forth between the varsity and junior varsity this year, played with confidence.

"We played smarter golf and took our medicine a couple of times instead of going for a harder shot and potential problems," Beward said.

Western Hills' Nick Wilkins led the Wolverines with a 35.

The Anderson junior varsity was also sharp, beating Western Hills 156-190. Zachary Toles led Anderson with a 36, followed by Chris Sea's 37.

Beward said the one-sided JV score was a "demonstration of how deep this team really is. Chris Sea and Zachary Toles played efficient rounds. Dalton Lewis seems to be gaining confidence every time he steps on the golf course."

After seeming to regress a bit last week, the impressive performance had Beward smiling again about his team's chances.

"The old adage that you are only as good as your last round rings true," Beward said.

"We played well and I'm a much happier man."

SOCCER

we are going to have some mistakes early. Her skill level is very high. She is so athletic that she has very high potential."

Anderson's Allie Johnson, who had been nursing an ankle sprain, scored from the right wing with 8:25 left, then Madeline Wilson drove home a penalty kick with 6:17 to play to close out the scoring. The Lady Bearcats were unable to muster any sort of attack over the final six minutes, something that has plagued Anderson through the first two weeks of the season.

"That is the main thing," Earnest said when asked about the lack of crisp passing. "We don't know where to go without the ball, then the person with the ball is having trouble finding someone.

"We are struggling offensively. We have in every game so far. We are trying to work through it."

Anderson had drawn first blood when Wilson ripped a shot home from just in front of the net in the 11th minute. Less than two minutes later, Spencer tied things on a penalty kick.

Never a power traditionally, Spencer has elevated its program to the point of being a regional semi-finalist last year. But given the history of Anderson's dominance over the Bears, could the Lady Bearcats have taken Spencer a bit lightly? "I don't think the kids took them lightly," Earnest said. "I tried to tell the kids how fast they were. Ratchford is really fast and they have a lot of seniors on the roster."

Anderson gets a chance at a bit of redemption tonight, Wednesday, Sept. 4, when the Lady Bearcats host Shelby County in another district game. A win in that one would greatly help the Lady Bearcats' district seeding.

"I told the girls that right now, we are playing for the second spot," Earnest said.

Anderson Co. 1, Mercer Co. 1

In a previously unreported game, the Lady Bearcats tied Mercer County, 1-1, in the season opener on Aug. 24. Claire Prater scored Anderson's only goal.

"That was the best game we have played so far," Earnest said.

Nelson Co. 1, Anderson Co. 0

Nelson County scored on a breakaway for the only goal in a 1-0 win over the Lady Bearcats last Monday in Bardstown.

"We hit the crossbar early, but other than that, neither team had many scoring chances," Earnest said.

Bearcats to host South Oldham in home opener

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

This is not the South Oldham football team you are used to seeing.

These Dragons, who will try to spoil Anderson County's home opener, really are capable of breathing some football fire.

Anderson hosts South Oldham, a team it has played – and always beaten – off and on for 20 years, Friday night at Hollie Warford Stadium. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

The teams first met in 1993 and last clashed two years ago in the first round of the state playoffs. They've gone at it eight times, with the Bearcats taking all eight. There have been routs, such as the 59-13 shellacking in 2008 and the miraculous comebacks, like the 38-37 win in 2010 when Anderson rallied from a 37-10 deficit.

But every time, Anderson County has won. More often than not, the Bearcats have done so handily.

However, there was a culture change in Crestwood when Jamie Reed was hired to lead the program. Against Anderson, Reed is 0-2. In addition to the 38-37 thriller, the Bearcats pulled out a 33-26 win as their first step to the state championship game in 2011. Neither game was secure until the final minute.

"Coach Reed is one of the most under-rated coaches in the state of Kentucky," Anderson coach Mark Peach says. "They will have our full attention."

One bit of evidence that Reed has changed the thinking around South Oldham was the school's first-ever district championship last year. Actually, the Dragons finished in a three-way tie with Conner and Cooper, but won the tie-breaker. South defeated West Jessamine in its playoff opener but lost to Cooper for the second time in the regional semifinals.

South finished last year at 8-4. Along the way, the Dragons outscored Conner and quarterback Drew Barker, 63-57.

The Dragons are 1-1 after last week's 41-14 loss to Collins, but before the game Reed made some telling remarks about the attitude change he has forged at South. Talking to The Oldham Era before that contest, Reed said, "In our program, we don't think anyone is above us. We feel like we can compete with any team on any given Friday night... We may not get as much recognition as Collins and some of the other schools, but I think our kids put a pretty good product on the field and they'll be fired up for Friday night."

Chances are the Dragons, who were ranked 10th in The Courier-Journal pre-season poll of Class 5A coaches, will feel the same way Friday against the eighth-ranked Bearcats.

"They are outstanding," Peach said of South Oldham. "They controlled East Jessamine (a 30-8 win) in their opener."

South Oldham had to replace quarterback Jack Sherry, now at Morehead State and several other top players,but Peach says, "They just plug in the next guy. They are at a point in their program they just plug the next guy in to fit their system."

Senior Chase Lightfoot has been plugged in Sherry's spot. Against East Jessamine, he completed 6-of-9 passes for 131 yards and a touchdown. He also ran for 72 yards and three scores.

Anderson County's Sam Laytart (14) looks for some extra room after catching a pass for a big gainer early in Friday's 50-21 win at George Rogers Clark.

Win could be historic

An Anderson win could be significant in the history of Bearcat football.

After beating George Rogers Clark Friday, the Bearcats' all time record is 327 wins, 328 losses and 10 ties. Anderson High School started playing football in 1949 and has rarely been at .500 or better all-time. A win Friday would put Anderson at that threshold. Ties were eliminated in the 1975 season.

Injury update

Anderson hopes to have senior linebacker Huston Page back for Friday's game. Page sprained his shoulder in the final pre-season scrimmage against Mason County and watched Friday's game at George Rogers Clark in street clothes.

"We are optimistic," Peach said of Page's possible return. "He has responded well to treatment."

Senior Tyson Yett also missed the Clark game but is out indefinitely after an appendectomy during pre-season.

FOOTBALL

guys," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "We got down early and came back.

"We had scrimmaged two quality opponents in Danville and Mason County and we were able to do some things tonight. We still need to correct some things, but our guys hung in there in terms of really trying to execute what we wanted them to do."

Anderson won its opener for the first time since 2010. The final margin of victory was Anderson's biggest in a season-opener since a 47-10 win over Garrard County in 2009 and the 50 points was Anderson's most prolific lid-lifter since a 52-0 shellacking of Madison Southern in 2008.

Junior quarterback Zachary Carmichael completed 11-of-20 passes for 214 yards and a touchdown. He ran for two more scores.

Another junior, running back Chris Toomey, ran for a pair of touchdowns, while sophomore running back Ryan Martin, seeing his first significant varsity playing time, ran for two more and led the Bearcats with 76 yards on the ground. Martin also jumpstarted the Bearcats with a 36-yard punt return that set up Anderson's first touchdown.

Carmichael capped that initial scoring drive with a 7-yard scoring run with 4:44 to go in the first quarter. Joe Rose's extra point put the Bearcats ahead to stay.

Anderson had found itself down quickly. After taking the opening kickoff and driving to the Clark 23, the Bearcats coughed the ball up on Sam Laytart's fumble. On the very next play, Clark burned the Bearcats with some razzle-dazzle as receiver Brent Stoneking took the ball behind the line, then fired a pass to quarterback Luke Sharrock, who was so open he could have sipped an Ale-8-One before racing to the end zone.

The two-point conversion failed, but Anderson had been alerted that the lofty ranking meant nothing between the sidelines.

"The coaches told us to just keep our cool and play the next play," senior Ross Cox said.

Brandez Fuller (6), Landon Searcy (57), Tristin Ashburn (15), Blake Trimble (24) and Chris Toomey (4) lead the Anderson County Bearcats onto the field for the season-opener at George Rogers Clark.

It took an exchange of punts and Martin's spectacular return to the Clark 25 before the Bearcats started clicking, but when they did, they became a machine.

There were brief scoring marches, such as the first scoring drive. There were sustained drives, such as Anderson's next possession, when the Bearcats moved 81 yards in nine plays. Toomey did the honors from a yard out, but the big gainer of the march was a 22-yard toss from Carmichael to Brayden Russell.

And there was everything else in between.

Martin pushed the lead to 21-6 with a 20-yard run and added another touchdown, this time from 10-yards out, to make it 28-14. A Carmichael-to-Russell combo for 33 yards highlighted that march.

Clark had gotten within 21-14 late in the second quarter, moving 79 yards in five plays. Logan Burchett found paydirt from five yards out but the score was set up when Sharrock connected with Stoneking for a 59-yard pickup.

Clark would get no closer. Toomey capped a 71-yard drive, motoring six yards for a score, then Carmichael and Cox connected for a 58-yard scoring strike that made it 42-14 and put things on ice.

"We challenged the kids at halftime," Peach said. "We were able to pretty much execute what we asked the kids to do."

The Bearcat line, which had begun to impose its will in the second quarter, was an irresistable force after the break.

"We have one of the best lines in the state," Cox said of his buddies in the trenches. "They were just awesome.

Anderson passed for 214 yards and ran for 216.

Anderson contained Clark's speed. Receiver Khamarkis Blanton, who Peach was very concerned about, caught just one pass for 23 yards.

"They have a lot of speed," Peach said. "To slow them down, you have to play team defense. Everybody has to mind their role. I thought Coach (Duane) Hammons had a great defensive game plan. We had a couple of breakdowns, but for the most part, we really hung in there defensively."

"We knew they had some athletes, but we have some athletes too," added Cox, who was noticeably shadowing Blanton at times. "When they tried to get outside on us, we had to contain them."

Clark coach Steven Collins also lavished praise on the Bearcat defense. "They are very good defensively," he said. "They keyed on their assignments and are very disciplined. You just have to block them. They have some big guys up front and they use their angles very well. They are very hard to get out of position and play good team defense. If you do that, you are going to be a good football team."

It was an assessment not lost on Peach.

"We had six different kids catch the football and three ball carriers run for over 50 yards. It's about team. The offense, it's team. The defense, it's team. The kicking game, team. When we do all of those things, we can be a pretty good football team."

The game was delayed for more than 20 minutes when Sharrock went down with a severe concussion with 14 seconds to go in the first half. Sharrock was transported by amulance to Clark Regional Medical Center.

"He definitely got his bell rung," Collins said. "He had some stiffness in his neck. Hopefully we will have him back soon."

Sharrock's injury happened just in front of the Anderson bench. "He got caught in between a couple of guys," Peach said. "Certainly, our thoughts and prayers go out to him. It was one of those situations where he was trying to do the best he could and a couple of our guys were trying to do the best they could. I don't think there was anything intentional."

Collins added, "They kind of converged. It was a pretty good shot. It wasn't dirty. It was a clean, hard football shot."

Cox, who said he was one of the Bearcats who hit Sharrock, noted that the players from both teams were concerned. "I just hope he is all right," Cox said.

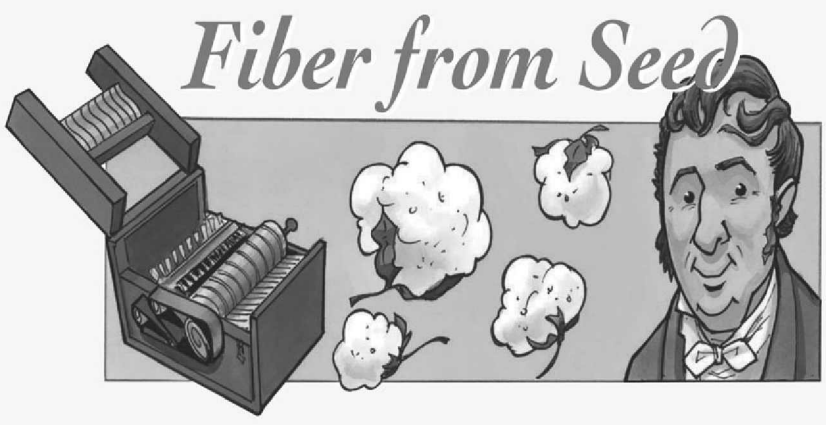
9. _____ 10. _____

Some answers: bead, breed, creed, deed, feed, heed, lead, need, reed, steed

Fiber from Seed



Have you ever seen a stalk of cotton? There are many seeds in cotton fibers, and until Eli Whitney came along, workers had to remove those seeds by hand, which took many hours.

Whitney invented the cotton gin to remove the seeds from cotton fibers in the late 1790s. Although the machine was a success, it did not make Whitney rich. Many farmers did not want to pay Whitney to separate their cotton and made cotton gins of their own.

Whitney invented many other things, including a way to make muskets by machine. It was his work in manufacturing where he made most of his money.

Fact or Fiction?

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, September 5, 2013, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property

(4)Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(5) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
